Aim: This course aims to introduce students to the most prominent theories of language learning starting from behaviourism to cognitivism and connect them with various approaches to language learning. It will enable students to gain insights into the process of language learning and teaching by reviewing some of the prevalent methods used for language teaching from early 20th century to the most recent ones. The course will focus on the social context, situating the learner and language policies within a sociolinguistic framework that would enable an analysis and comprehension of the changing trends in approaches and theories of language learning. It is expected that this would help students to trace their own journey as language learners and carry out small-scale projects exploring various factors influencing language learning in greater detail.
