	school follows the same reservation norms for students with disability as per other schools in the university. In addition, there are courses in SVS that do focus on creating inclusive spaces. Gender roles and a larger discussion on marginalization within the industry could also be a point of consideration and discussion in the curriculum/courses. These could be in form of readings, workshops, awareness of policies related to ICC, interaction with the Equal Opportunity Cell and so on. In the BVoC programme, there are courses, especially in the General Education Component that do address issues related to diversity and inclusion. Further, induction of marginalised students into the programme also depends upon the admission policy of the university. 	Chinese and Spanish language to students. However due to the pandemic, it was not feasible. Next, year, the school may consider offering both languages. - The courses should focus on creating more inclusive work spaces for including diverse genders, disability and so on. 24.18	Ms. Priyanka Nirwan (Enrollment No. S184CWG04) student of MPhil Women's and Gender Studies, had appealed the School of Human Studies (SHS) to review her grades of MPhil Dissertation. The student had reported alleged procedural lapse and sent a request to the school on June 25th, 2021 for re-evaluation of her MPhil Grade B plus. The appeal filed by the student was discussed in the emergency RSC (Research School Committee) meeting of SHS, held on 1st July 2021 wherein, following observations were made:- 1. The committee observed that the procedural lapse on the part of the school that the student has put forward is not an intentional or inordinate delay, but it was an extra ordinary and difficult time of Covid-19 Pandemic and therefore it is not the basis on which re-examination can be warranted. 2. Apart from RAC members and supervisor, the student's dissertation was examined by two independent experts (one internal and one external) and the examiners had given the satisfactory reports after which the viva voice was conducted and graded and there doesn't seem any delay in that process. Therefore, there is no reason for asking for re-evaluation as it has been independently evaluated by two experts and also there is no provision in the MPhil Research regulations 2017 for	Noted.

	revaluation of submitted dissertation after via-voce. Hence there will be no change in dissertation grade i.e. B plus.
	The minutes of the RSC were further deliberated by the Chair, SCR, wherein the Chair SCR observed that i) there is no provision in the M.Phil Research Regulations 2017 for revaluation of submitted dissertation after viva voce. Hence, there will be no change in dissertation grade i.e., "B+" ii) As per the submitted time line, all examiners report of dissertation process of viva-voce did take longer than expected time because School Dean, office staff, the examiner, supervisor of the student and the student (Priyanki Nirwan) were all down with Covid during the month of April and May, 2021. Hence, there is no procedural lapse in the matter of Ms. Priyanka Nirwan.
	The recommendations of the Research Studies Committee (RSC) and the observations of the Chair, SCR were approved by the Competent Authority.

	As per the present PhD Regulations, the normal registration period is for five years and our present coverage under this scheme is only for three years. It is proposed that the coverage may be extended to the full tenure of PhD. Several other Universities have instituted mechanism to support their research scholars throughout this registration period. Some of the other universities (Delhi University and Banaras Hindu University) indicate that they are providing stipend till 4 years, but these are connected to old UGC regulations in which maximum PhD registration normally may be 5 years.
	The proposal of extending the stipend till 4 years for now and for constituting a Committee to explore the possibility of extending the non-NET stipend till the full registration period, as per the AUD PhD Regulations, 2021 keeping in view the welfare of the University PhD scholars, was placed before the Academic Council for consideration and deliberations.
